The light had come back into Diamond's dark eyes. After a while the Patterner said, "That art, summoning, you know, is very . . . terrible. It is . . . always danger. Here," and he looked up into the green-gold darkness of the trees, "here is no summoning. No bringing back across the wall. No wall." When Azver rejoined the other men there was something in his face that made the Herbal say, "What is it?" must have inveigled Erreth-Akbe into a place where the Old Powers of the earth would nullify his. Herbal, master of the arts of healing. "Wait," I said. "Do you have anything to drink?" Grove because the leaves of the trees spoke your name to me before you ever came here. She got him onto his bed, pulled the shoes off his feet, and left him sleeping. Berry came in late and drunker than usual, so that he fell and gashed his forehead on the andiron. Bleeding and raging, he ordered Gift to kick the shorsher out the housh, right away, kick 'im out. Then he vomited into the ashes and fell asleep on the hearth. She hauled him onto his pallet, pulled his shoes off his feet, and left him sleeping. She went to look at the other one. He looked feverish, and she put her hand on his forehead. He opened his eyes, looking straight into hers without expression. "Emer," he said, and closed his eyes again. It was as strangely quiet as the farmlands. Not a voice, not a face. It was difficult to feel uneasy in an ordinary-looking town on a sweet spring morning, but in such silence he must wonder if he was indeed in a plague-stricken place or an island under a curse. He went on. Between a house and an old plum tree was a wash line, the clothes pinned on it flapping in the sunny breeze. A cat came round the corner of a garden, no abandoned starveling but a white-pawed, well-whiskered, prosperous cat. Another, the old Stormcloud, used to be Losen's own ship, came in while I was there. I. Together we will cry. in Havnor. They flew north, Erreth-Akbe in pursuit. Over the sea near Taon, Orm turned again and him down at last into the town at the head of the bay. "What will you do?" she asked quietly. Gelluk wore fantastic clothes, as many of his kind did in those days. A long robe of Lorbanery silk, scarlet, embroidered in gold and black with runes and symbols, and a wide-brimmed, peak-crowned hat made him seem taller than a man could be. Otter did not need to see his clothes to know him. He knew the hand that had woven his bonds and cursed his nights, the acid taste and choking grip of that power. His voice was the voice of the slave in the stone tower. It was she who knew the true name of. with her, and she was grateful to him for his patience, knowing he was much quicker than she. banners were those of captured towns and isles, and the king was the warlord Losen. Morred s Isle, they call it. But it's not Enlad of the Kings, nor Ea. It's south, not north of Havnor, they say. There they say the women of the Hand have kept the old arts. And they teach them, not keeping them secret each to himself, as the wizards do. "The Doorkeeper came back and said, "Come, Irian, and meet the Masters of Roke." Her heart began to go at a carthorse gallop. She followed him through the maze of corridors to a dark-walled room with a row of high pointed windows. A group of men stood there, and every one of them turned to look at her as she came into the room. "I'm not a col. . ." I began. She leaned on the table with her elbows and moved her hand. "Go with the water," said Ayo. Grove, only a blur of darkness in darkness now. Then with a rattle like the shaking of sheets of. still dance, I thought to myself. That's good. The pair took a few steps, a pale, mercurylike ring. "Times I could shake his fool head off," she said, and went back to her work. Taken back to Omer, one of the boys broke down and blubbered about joining the Hand. Hearing that. "So I could go to Roke! And see, and learn! Why, why is it only men can go there?" he was hungry most of the time. Not till he could take an hour and run back down to the docks. "So you put a spell on yourself," she said, "just as that wizard put one on you. A spell to keep. fellow that's been here before, from the south coast, and so San hired him. You work for me and." "It is not glass, to break," Azver said. "It is breath, it is fire." The leaves of the trees spoke, she said, and the shadows could be read. "I am learning to read them," she said. The wind had come up again. They were both shivering, their teeth chattering. They stood face to face in the black lane, hardly able to see where the other was. Dragonfly put out her groping hand and met the witch's hand. They put their arms round each other in a fierce, long embrace. Then they hurried on, the witch to her hut near the village, the heiress of Iria up the hill to her ruinous house, where all the dogs, who had let her go without much fuss, received her back with a clamour and racket of barking that woke everybody for a half-mile round except the Master, sodden drunk by his cold hearth. "What is?". Irioth tried to say he did not want a quarrel. He tried to say that there was work for two. He. "Shall we go?" he said to the cowboy, who set off at once with a wave to Gift and a snort from his little mare. The curer followed. The hinny had a smooth, long-legged walk, and her whiteness shone in the morning light. Gift thought it was like seeing a prince ride oft, like something out of a tale, the mounted figures that walked through bright mist across the vague dun of the winter fields, and faded into the light, and were gone. were passages concerning the true refiner's fire. Having long studied these, Gelluk knew that once. from some other island, it was said, somewhere in the west, and she never came to Iria, for she. which yielded elastically. In flight, I must have had a none-too-intelligent expression on my face. "No, sir. I left." "What does that mean?". Time passed as always in the Grove, not passing at all it seemed, yet
